Consumption from Bedbugs.

Dewevre (Reveu de Medecine, Sept. 18, 1802) reports a youth of eighteen whose two prothers had died of pulmonary phtnisis. Eighteer months after the death of the latter prother, with whom he had lived, the patient ell til with pulmonary tuberculosis, which manifestly was of recent date, as repeated examinations before showed him to have healthy lungs. Dewevre discovered a number of bedbug bites on the patient's body, and as the house was infested by the insects he suspected them as possible carriers of the infection. Sixty per cent. of the bugs, crushed to a pulp and filtered, were found to contain tubercular bacilit. Three guinea pigs into whom the pulp was injected died of general tuberculosis.
